THE AUDITORIUM.

Vaudeville shows come and go, but the Auditorium is like the weather— always with us. The offering for the present week stands up well as a com-edy bill, every number containing a goodly portion of comedy. Mile, Anita's Monks are a well trained troupe of Monks are a well trained troupe of intelligent simians, whose mischievous antics cause much merriment. This act should be a great treat for the little folks. One of the monks, a valuable mandril, is at present undergoing an operation in the hands of two local dectors.

doctors.

The minute that the diminutive comedian of Ralston & Son strikes the stage there is a spontaneous outburst of laughter. This act is a laughing number, pure and simple, and while the highbrows may call it ridiculous it furnishes good wholesome comedy for the average person.

Bertina & Brockaway, a pair of extremely agile girls, go through several fast routines embracing singing, dancing and contortion work. Sadie Calhoun has made an immediate his with the Norwich public and her clever songs and pleasing voice proclaim her a finished artiste.

The Auditorium Duo and the silent Cameragraph complete the bill, which Cameragraph complete the bill, which is pronounced a winner. Don't fail to see Blocksom & Burns on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Funniest act in BROADWAY THEATER. Our New Minister.

One of the important attractions to elsit this city this season is scheduled for Friday, March 25, matinee and night, when Our New Minister will be presented with the same enormous scenic equipment intact and the notable cast of dramatic celebrities that has aroused the interest of intelligent theatergoers in the principal cities for the past seven years. That it will be considered a dramatic treat is a foregone conclusion, judging from the reports everywhere along the line where this attraction has thus far appeared. Our New Minister is a play of the day, with characterizations of the hour, just such as are met in daily walks of life, every type being human, every episode, scene and climax truth itself. It is a carefully constructed series of life pictures throughout possessing an absorbing plot and convincing story. One of the important attractions to

Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm. Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm is one of the few genuine dramatic successes of the year. It comes to the Broadway theater this afternoon and evening from a run of nine weeks at the Tre-mont theater, Boston, where it has from a run of nine weeks at the Tremont theater, Boston, where it has broken all records for receipts and attendance. The play has attracted thousands of people who seldom if everenter a theater; it is equally interesting to young and old, rich and poor. Catholic, Protestant or Jew. Rebecca appeals equally to all; she preaches no sermon, but she takes you back to your childhood days.

The play has been described as a rural play, but this is erroneous; that is in the ordinary acceptance of the term as applied to the drama. The scene of Rebecca, while laid in a small country town in Maine, might just as well be taid anywhere else; the scene simply acts as a background in which is mirrored the life of a young girl. Edith Taialferro makes an ideal Rebecca; she was selected by Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin especially for the role and it is doubtful if there is another actress on the stage today who could so faithfully show the transitions from the girl of twelve to the young lady of seventeen and play both parts equally well. Archie Boyd, one of the best character actors on the stage today, makes a genuine down east stage driver. Other members of the company worthy of more than passing notice are Harry C. Browne, Sam Colt, Ernest Truex, Marie L. Day, Ellza Glassford, Viola Fortescue, Violet Mersereau, Edith Story and Kathryn and Etta Bryan.

BREED THEATER.

The Final Settlement, Thrilling Biograph Story.

In the great story of the Canadian backwoods as portrayed by the Biograph cast and entitled The Final Settlement there is abundant spirit and dash that make the picture an extremely novel one. The strongly characteristic picture tells of the love of two woodchoppers for a pretty Canadian girl, who in making her choice first selects the one who later shows traces of drinking and is dismissed, and then realizing the many sterling qualities of the other, turns her affection over to him. Later she is seen in her happy home, but the rejected suitor, up to his customary pastime, makes an effort to loot an isolated cabin and when he attacks the woman of the house finds it is his old-time sweetheart. He demands the truth and is told it and hastened to work in the start. house finds it is his old-time sweet-heart. He demands the truth and is told it, and hastens to wreak his re-venge upon the innocent husband, and with this villatnous plot in his mind he wanders back through the woods. His better self asserts itself and he meets the husband, who insists upon settling the matter at nightfall. Both parties agree, but the villain, with his love for the girl still true, extracts the builet from his pistol and in the battle he is killed instead of the father and husband. This is a powerfully drahusband. This is a powerfully dra-matic story and one of the finest in

The Girls of the Ranch still continues to attract large houses and pleases them, while the whole bill is one of unusual excellence.

Logical Inference. Lord Lucas, who is so ably supporting Mr. Haldane in the territorial scheme, tells a good story of a teacher in a Midland town noted for his patriotic fervor. One day he was explaining to his class what he thought was a sad lack of proper spirit in the average English boy. "Now, Tommy," he said, "tell us what you would think if you saw a Union Jack waving proud-ly over the field of battle." "I should think," was the logical reply of Thomas, "that the wind was blowing." From M. A. P.

AN ITCHING ERUPTION

"My baby boy was about nine months old when he had a breaking out on his neck which was very annoying. It used to make him very fretful and cross because it seemed to worry him so much. I had my dector look at the baby and he told me it was eczema and he wanted to treat it. But a friend of mine told me she knew it could be cured cheaper and in much less time. So I started using the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, which I soon found out was what I ought to have had before, for the eczema seemed to itch so the baby could not keep his head still and he was rubbing and twisting all the time. I used the Cuticura Remedies three times the first day and began to notice the good it was doing, for he began to get rest from rubbing his neck, "So I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and now no one could tell that he ever had any kind of breaking out, and since then I have never been without Cuticura Soap nor Cuticura Ointment, Mrs. Lula Dorsey, 12 Browns Ct., S. W., Washington, D. C., Oct. 2, 1909."

Stone Jug Not in Demand. A countryman went into a New York store and asked for a stone jug. He didn't get it. The merchant said he did not know when he ever had such a call. The stone jug has gone out of city trade. The demijohn long since took its place, but the average countryman sticks to the jug. According to the Vesey street merchant, if a city man wants a jug he has to go out of town to buy it.

For Sick Persons. When beef can be served to a sick person get a small piece of good porterhouse steak and broil it on the range. It will be free from frying grease, and the juices will not be boiled out. Cooked until tender, seasoned with fresh butter, salt and pepper, the dish is one of the most putritious articles of food that can be given to furnish strength to a person regaining lost health.

Splendid, but Unromantic. England is still the land of splendid homes, especially of the middle class, ordinary, clean-living, levelheaded English men and women are rearing families of healthy boys and girls and instilling into their minds good, honest principles of right and wrong. The popular novelist does not find these people interesting.-London Gentlewoman.

Divided the Wedding Presents. The following advertisement appears in a Hungarian journal: "Ilma Rok and Franz Sitoli have great pleasure in informing their friends that their engagement is broken off, and that they have amicably agreed to divide the wedding presents received instead of returning them to the donor."

FOETRY.

BEAUTIFUL HANDS.

Those beautiful, beautiful hands
Which are neither white nor small;
And you I know would scarcely think,
That they were white at all.
I've looked on hands of form and hus
A sculptor's dream might be;
Yet are these aged and wrinkled hands
Most beautiful to me.

Most beautiful to me.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands,
When her heart was weary and sad;
Those patient hands kept tolling on
That the children might be glad.
I often weep when looking back
To childhood's distant day,
And think how these hands rested not
When mine were at their play.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands,
They are growing feeble now,
And time and toil have left their mark
On hand and heart and brow.
Alas! alas! the nearing time,
The sad, sad day to me;
When 'neath the daisies, out of sight,
Those hands must folded be.

But O, beyond the shadowy lands

But O, beyond the shadowy lands
Where all is bright and fair,
I know full well those dear old hands
Will palms of victory bear.
Where crystal streams through endless i years
Flow over golden sands:
And where the old grow young again,
I'll clasp my Mother's hands.

TRUST HIM AND WAIT.

"Go work today in My vineyard,"
The Master of Life had said;
Obedient he followed the mandate
In the pathway that thither ied.

And he labored in dutiful patience,
Love's tenderness guiding his feet.
Till he came to the silent gateway,
Where Time and Eternity meet.
The sun of Life sank slowly
Through the portals of night in the i west.
And his tired hands were folded
In peace on his tired breast,

And we stand in the shadow and sor-On the earthward side of the gate, And we pray our Father in heaven To teach us to trust Him and wait!
